FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

New York Stock Market.

New York, March 30.—The course of the stock market to-day was a surprise to the majority of traders. The temper of speculation was strong almost from start to finish and when certain stocks were hammered by the bear contingent others were rapidly brought to the front by bulls, who placed sufficient buying orders to prevent any pronounced reaction. The volume of business showed a material increase and dealings were also better distributed than of late. Railways as well as industrials were conspicuous at intervals, but the strength of the former was considered by far the most important feature.

The Eastern and Western trunk lines improved $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. Illinois Central, Union Pacific and Central Pacific also moved up. Pittsburgh and Western preferred sold up $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. Chesapeake and Ohio $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. and Atchison and Canada Southern, $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. and 55 $\frac{1}{2}$ respectively. Lackawanna rose $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ per cent. Jersey Central and Delaware and Hudson rose about a point, but Reading barely held its own. Industrial pools displayed renewed activity, especially American sugar, which sold up from 102 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 106 $\frac{1}{2}$. Distilling and Cattle Feeding which rose from 30 to 33 and National Cordage which advanced from 61 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 64 $\frac{1}{2}$.

In a few instances final quotations showed a reaction of $\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. The change in the current of sentiment is perhaps best indicated by the apparent indifference to rates for money. Although the market was subject to violent fluctuations, borrowers having paid all the way from five to twenty-five per cent. for accommodations, the demand for stock continued right up to the close. The market closed strong on an advance. Sales of listed stocks, 241,000; unlisted, 6,000. Sub-treasury balances: Coin, 73,001,000; currency, \$20,596,000.

ACCUSED OF A SERIOUS OFFENCE.

Ned Beverly charged by Cordelia Jones With Felonious Assault.

Ned Beverly, a mean looking negro, was arrested Wednesday evening for raising a disturbance at 1012 Gainesborough avenue. An officer went and arrested the negro. He was arraigned yesterday morning before Justice Turner and fined $10 for carrying a concealed weapon. A young girl named Cordelia Jones, aged about 15 years, was standing in the court room and asked if they were going to let Beverly off with a fine after his brutal treatment to her. She then swore out a warrant before Justice Turner in which she accused the said Beverly of assaulting her at the point of a pistol on Saturday and Monday and gave corroborative and circumstantial evidence to that effect.

Chief of Police Terry made an investigation and found her statement borne out. The case will come up this morning. An examination made by Dr. Moorman corroborates the girl's statement.

The Big Minstrel Show is Coming.

Low Dockstader and his famous organization of burnt cork fan-maters will be the attraction at the Academy of Music on Tuesday, April 6. No doubt this announcement will be hailed with delight by the thousands of admirers of this popular form of American amusement. Mr. Dockstader always strives to present a pure, clean and pleasing program, and the most particular man is safe in taking his best girl, his wife, his daughter or his mother, as there is never the least thing in Dockstader's entertainments that can possibly offend the most fastidious. The ever alert and enterprising Lew has gathered together this season a small army of minstrel celebrities which he declares is stronger, larger and better than any company he has ever been connected with. One very important engagement is that of Frank Dumont, who is referred to as the minstrel Shakespeare. Mr. Dumont has been for several years the stage director and producer at the principal minstrel theaters of New York and Philadelphia and it was only an exceedingly large salary which tempted him to put in one year on the road. Among the productions of Mr. Dumont with Dockstader will be many bright satirical sketches on the issues of the day. In the present program which the company are doing as an original sketches by Dumont entitled "The Cake Walk." It is said to be brimful of fun and embellished with lively, tuneful music.

Death of Josie Denman.

Miss Josie Denman, aged 25 years, oldest daughter of J. S. and Annie Denman, died yesterday morning at 9 o'clock after a lingering illness of several weeks, of consumption at her father's residence, 614 Henry street s. w. The funeral services will take place to-day at 2 o'clock p. m. at the First Baptist Church and will be conducted by Rev. R. R. Acree, after which the remains will be interred in the City Cemetery.

James M. Garnett, commander of the John Bowie Strange Camp, Confederate Veterans, Charlottesville, has appointed a committee to make all necessary arrangements and appoint such sub-committees as may be requisite for the proper celebration of the unveiling of the monument to the Confederate soldiers, which will take place at the University of Virginia on June 2.

The contracting business formerly conducted under the firm name of Sims & Skinner will after this date be done by Sims & Dyer.

THE COTTON MILL.

Roanoke Has Advantages Over Points Further South.

The proposition of the projectors of the cotton mill is being received with favor by the citizens, and from the expressions of opinion there is little doubt that the laboring classes will receive this additional means of earning a livelihood.

The proposition of Greenville, S. C., to locate the plant there on account of its being the receiving point of a cotton-growing territory can be dissected. Greenville, while being the depot of raw material, pays local Southern rates, where this city uses a through system of traffic rates to Norfolk, which covers any advantage Greenville has over Southwestern Virginia.

What is Greenville going to do without sectional traffic rates? Roanoke here scores an advantage, for the rates on cotton piece goods (manufactured articles) from Greenville to New York is sixty cents per hundred, while this city is satisfied with carrying a manufactured article of this class at twenty-eight cents, which is a clear gain of thirty-two cents on each one hundred pounds of manufactured product.

Now comes the question of expense after the mill is assured, and it requires no great mathematician to solve the problem. Roanoke is the nearer to the manufacturing machinery centers of this country, and the very mechanism which will operate the plant will be warmed into life by coal which costs $1.35 per ton less to light the fire than that which can feed a mill in Piedmont or Greenville at the present traffic rates.

Expert labor dislikes the heat of the cotton growing territory, while Roanoke with its low rates on raw and manufactured products, its climate and unequalled home facilities, stands high in this section of the country.

The location of the mill will be settled on Saturday, and as was said at the meeting on Monday night the furthering and fostering of this industry will be a criterion of good citizenship. Weldon, N. C., has asked Capt. J. C. Henry and H. B. Woodruff to visit that city with a view to locating a cotton mill there.

THE CHOLERA SPREADING.

The Russian Government Concealing an Alarming Condition.

St. Petersburg, March 30.—Cholera has made its appearance again in this city and it is known that fatal cases are of daily occurrence, although the authorities have not resumed their policy of last year of making a regular daily announcement of new cases and deaths. At present the authorities are pursuing the policy of suppression, and withhold from the public all information as to the spread of the disease. Very disquieting rumors have been received from the interior of Russia and the ministry of the interior is taking action which indicates that the government must possess special information of the gravest character.

The ministry has ordered the reopening of the Medical Sanitary stations in the Volga provinces, where the cholera carried off many thousands last year; and special steamers with sanitary staffs will cruise in the river, stopping along the Volga to pick up any cholera patients or any dead from cholera stricken vessels plying on that stream. The government is also causing to be formed sanitary commissions which will look after the health of people at a point to be reached through the railway system of Russia.

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

From the Engineering Record.

CHEAP ELECTRIC LIGHTS.—The comparatively high cost of electric lights when first introduced has in a great measure placed that means of illumination, as ordinarily considered, among the luxuries of life as far as house lighting is concerned. Yet its safety, simplicity and freedom from vitiating effects on the atmosphere made it most admirably adapted to the purpose of lighting the dwellings of the more intelligent of the day-laboring portion of a city's population, and the better class of tenements. If its cost could be brought down within the reach of these people, electric lighting would be made to assume the phase of a most philanthropic application of science to common life. At first sight this would seem to be almost Utopian, but some English experiences indicate the early realization of such plans. According to the Engineer, the eminent electrician, Mr. W. H. Preece, states that at Newcastle, where gas is only 45 cents per thousand, the electric light is produced so cheaply that it successfully competes with gas at a cost per lamp of $1.56 per year. At Bradford the cost per year is $2.39. The electric lamps at these prices lead to a small saving as compared with the cost of gas.

PROGRESS IN NAVAL WORK.—The great progress made in shipbuilding in the United States during the past decade may be fittingly summarized in the statement of ex-Secretary Tracy, made at the "welcome home" dinner in Brooklyn, N. Y. He said that when the ships now in course of construction are completed, the United States will rank as the fifth naval power, surpassed only by England, France, Russia and Italy. The progress is achieved in power and efficiency, rather than in numbers, and has been marked by the creation of modern shipbuilding and marine engineering plants, and the development of an armor plate which has demonstrated its superiority in repeated tests.

REDUCTION OF PRICE FOR ELECTRIC ENERGY.—The Westminster Electric Supply Corporation, Limited, of London, has given notice that from March 31 the standard charge for electric energy will be reduced to 6d. per board of trade unit, a sliding scale of rebate to clubs and other large consumers. For current supply for lifts and other motor power the charge is 5d. per unit.

The Norfolk agent of the joint Carolina and Baltimore steamboat lines was fined $50 for working on Sunday and the case appealed to the corporation court.

The Baltimore Conference South, at its recent session in Front Royal, elected Prof. W. W. Robertson, principal of the Staunton city public schools, to succeed Dr. W. A. Harris as principal of the Wesleyan Female Seminary at Staunton. The Wesleyan will be opened in September with a full faculty.

DOWN IN A SALT MINE.

Perilous Descent and How It is Accomplished.

"Our exploration of the salt mine was not one of unalloyed pleasure and we do not know that we should care to repeat it. No matter, we had enlisted for the campaign, therefore we pushed on and soon reached a point where our leather aprons were brought into use," says an exchange. "First, however, we think we came to the lake, which, surrounded by a row of dull lamps, appeared to be an acre or so in extent, and entering a boat we were rowed across it. It looked black and tasted very salty. Everything here looked black except the dim lamplight, which served only to make darkness visible. We will not say that we thought we were in the infernal regions, but we will admit that a sort of shudder came over us, lest out of a deep sleep we might be in some such place! From this landing we now prepared to descend into a vast pit, seventy feet deep from the top of our heads—the distance from where we stood to the bottom being forty or fifty feet. A large, smooth piece of timber, with a rope for a guard, extended at about the inclination of an ordinary staircase—if anything a little steeper—to the bottom, and this was to serve as our carriage-way.

"Each gentleman now being furnished with a thick leather hand shoe to protect his right hand in grasping the rope, our guide seated himself astride this beam and slid down a few feet, bracing himself to allow us to follow suit. This, with lamps in our left hands, we did at once, the ladies being sandwiched between and holding to the shoulders of the gentleman who clasped the rope. The word was given and off we shot into the darkness below. Our guide managed in some way to check our fall so that no bones were fractured, but, although this may be a very good way to prove the utility of leather aprons, especially when worn behind, we are not prepared to recommend the performance, either for healthy exercise or amusement. Extending from the bottom of this pit there is a shaft in which the miners descend five hundred feet further into the bowels of the earth, but having no desire to explore regions so far inland we did not ask to enter. After collecting some specimens of rock salt, which lay here in heaps, ascending by a steep flight of stairs, we all mounted astride a wooden horse, sandwiched, as before, and by our own momentum were carried swiftly down the rail into daylight, perfectly content with our first experience of salt mines and inclined planes."

WELL-PRESERVED OLD MEN.

How They Endeavor to Conceal the Steady Encroachment of Time.

One of the most common conceits of old gentlemen past fifty is to claim that they are "just as young as they ever were," "never felt so well in my life," "just as vigorous as ever," "prime of life, sir," "full of intellectual vigor." Some of these elderly persons will wink and look wise and boast of their unimpaired vigor. But the San Francisco Argonaut points out that they do not ride horseback any more; "have lost their taste for such vigorous exercise." They do not go over the mountains for quail any more; they shoot duck from a punt hid in a tule blind. They do not dance, nor go up two steps at a time, nor jump upon a car while it is in motion. Just see one of these well-preserved old gentlemen get out of a buggy or walk up a hill; hear him pant and wheeze; see him avoid a draft from a crack in a door or window; see him throw his handkerchief over his bald head when he goes to sleep in church. This elderly gentleman carries a substantial cane, wears thick underclothes, a buckskin over his chest, corsets, if too fat, and a liver pad. His hair gets thin, his legs get weak, he gets irritable, thinks this generation not so good as the last, thinks the world is growing dishonest, and the country is going to the devil. If he is a lawyer, he has become an old fogey and the boys worry him with sharp practice. If he is a doctor, he regards all young men as quacks and all progress in medicine as empiricism. If he is a banker, he looks wise and continues to look wiser, till at the age of fifty the countenance is rigid with frozen sagacity.

Women never get to be fifty; that is, not by the regular process of gradually growing old. The dentist, the hairdresser, the corset maker, the milliner, the importer of French bonnets, form a bodyguard around the advancing female, and when, finally, she cannot dodge old age any longer, she just skips, with a bound, from thirty-five to seventy, throws up the sponge and turns pious.

Mrs. King's Two Stories.

A gentleman who remembers the family of ex-Gov. King in Bath tells the Portland Express a story which illustrates the folly of judging from appearances. A gentleman, a stranger in Bath, called at the house and inquired for Gov. King. Mrs. King, who answered the knock at the door, was in the midst of her morning's work, and did not present a very prepossessing appearance. The governor was not in and the gentleman asked if he could see Mrs. King. "I am Mrs. King." If the caller had charged her in so many words with telling a falsehood he could not have told her more plainly that he did not believe her. With a smile and a pleasant word about the weather he turned about and went down town. There he found Gov. King, who invited him to dinner. He accepted. The condition of his mind when the governor introduced him to Mrs. King can be better imagined than described.

An Odd Book.

A curious book, the text of which is neither written nor printed, but woven, has lately been published in Lyons. It is made of silk and was published in twenty-five parts. Each part consists of two leaves, so that the entire volume only contains fifty leaves, inscribed with one service of the mass and several prayers. Both the letters and the borders are in black silk on a white background.
